

ABSTRACT

A garment hanger that can hold articles as heavy as about 40 pounds yet is very thin so that it takes up minimal closet space. In addition, the shape of the holder reduces creases and dimples formed on the article of clothing and non-slip surfaces help prevent clothes from slipping off the hanger. Also, because of the dimensions of the hanger, the hanger according to the embodiments of the invention can hold a wide range of sizes of articles, from petites to extra large.
